

To whom it may concern,

I've worked with Faith Cotter over the past year and a half at the Innocence Institute of Point Park University, where I work in many capacities, including editor of the Institute's website and magazine. During that time, Faith has written a number of articles and case summaries. She has shown an incredible amount of patience and a sincere drive to become a better reporter. I think Faith would be an asset to any organization; she's a strong writer and a diligent student.

If you have further questions, please feel free to contact me.
